

To Students:

The fourth state of emergency was issued in Tokyo as of July 12, today and the University Activity Restrictions Index level was shifted from Level A to Level B. In response to this, the College and the Graduate of Arts and Sciences along with the Graduate School of Mathematical Sciences raised the status of the Komaba Campus I regarding novel coronavirus infection from Stage Yellow to Stage Orange.

For students, campus life such as class formats, extracurricular activities, restrictions on library use etc., and rules for opening the back gate will remain the same, while the stage of the campus is updated.

Please understand this point and stay calm in every situation. However, please be aware of the differences between Stage Yellow and Stage Orange and take the most efforts to prevent the possible infection, especially in extracurricular activities. It is known that the spread of infection is more likely to be caused by dining in groups before or after classes or extracurricular activities than through classes or extracurricular activities.

As ever, we would like to ask all of you to perform hand disinfection, wear masks, keep a safe space between yourself and others and refrain from group meetings and dining in the 'three Cs'. Thank you very much for your cooperation.
