TIMING: 24 April 2017 to 29 June 2017 There will be a total of fifteen sessions of 1.5 hours per session with significant reading (estimated at three hours per class) expected in advance of each class.

(Oxford University Press, 2016) – two copies are available in the Library and the text is also available for purchase through Amazon and other online retailers. COURSE DESCRIPTION: The development of the United Nations as shown by interpretations of the Charter in practice.

AIMS & OBJECTIVES: By examining primary materials focused on the normative context within which the United Nations functions, students will develop an understanding of the interaction between law and practice. This is essential to a proper understanding of the UN Organization, but also to the possibilities and limitations of multilateral institutions more generally.

There are no pre-requisites for this course at UNU, but please note in particular the course requirements identified below.

COURSE CREDITS: 2

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

There is no exam in this course which emphasizes broad participation by the students and not the instructor (who will not be lecturing on the topics assigned). Students who expect a lecture course or who are not willing to participate every day orally in class should seek a different course. Students are only expected to read the “required” readings; additional optional readings are only indicated for those who have a deeper interest in a topic but will generally not be the basis of class discussion.

Students’ grades will be based upon:

- Submission of five 1-page reaction papers (no longer than 500 words each) written over the course of the semester in response to the questions presented in the readings (35%).
Reaction papers will be due by e-mail by 6.00pm on Friday 28 April, Tuesday 16 May, Tuesday 23 May, Friday 9 June, and 12pm Wednesday 21 June, 2017. Each of the reaction papers will need to focus on one question assigned for the following class. The first reaction paper will not count towards the final grade. Each reaction paper will require a minimum of three hours of preparation.
- In-class participation which will account for 30% of the grade.

- A final paper of 10 pages (double spaced) on a topic agreed with the instructor will account for 35% of the grade. A 1-page outline will need to be cleared with the instructor before drafting proceeds. The final paper will require a minimum of 30 hours of preparation. The final paper should be submitted to the Degree Administration Office (Room 606 6F) by 17:00 hours on Thursday 20th July 2017.

Depending on how conversation in the course evolves, we may adjust what each week's class will address. As well, please note that we may host one or two relevant guests during the course.
